AutoCAD was developed by Autodesk in the early 1980s and was marketed as the first true "CAD" product. AutoCAD is noted for its ability to handle complex geometric designs, features that made it one of the first truly popular and successful commercial CAD programs. AutoCAD also represented a landmark in the history of software, having been the first product to be released as a commercial product before a successful release as a published book, and the first program to be released on a floppy disk, as opposed to magnetic tape. Today, AutoCAD has one of the largest, most loyal following of any software application. It is one of the best-selling programs of all time, with AutoCAD having been named "Product of the Century" by Users.com (2000). AutoCAD is installed on more than 100 million PCs worldwide, a number which is larger than the installed base of any other CAD software application, by an order of magnitude. According to the annual user survey "AutoCAD 2009" from Autodesk (2010), AutoCAD was the top user-rated product from Autodesk, with 87% of users having a very favorable opinion of the program and 84% saying that they would buy the same program again. Moreover, according to "A new era for AutoCAD" at CAD/CAM.com, AutoCAD has been the top-selling CAD software for more than a decade. History [edit] AutoCAD was originally developed by Arthur Brown, who wanted to make CAD more accessible to small firms and hobbyists. The original name for the software was "DRAW"; this name was shortened to "DRAW", and then later rebranded as "AutoCAD". Autodesk first introduced AutoCAD in late 1982 as a desktop app running on computers with internal graphics controllers. Development was started by engineers at Autodesk, but with help from several early adopters such as Arthur Brown and Tom Davis. Originally released as a standalone application, AutoCAD became a part of the AutoCAD 2000 release. It was offered as part of the "DX" (Desktop Engineering) software bundle, along with additional products such as ArborWorks. In 1991, Autodesk acquired Computer Imaging for $125 million and merged it with its own division. In 1995, Autodesk acquired Revolution Graphics, which was the creator of the first commercial CAD software, HP's CCR

Check out for more detail here. Tibor Fekete Tibor Fekete (born 27 July 1962) is a Hungarian professional wrestler, mixed martial artist, and professional bodybuilder. He is best known for his appearances in World Wrestling Entertainment (WWE), where he competed in the tag team division, where he and his team mates won the Tag Team Championship four times. Professional wrestling career World Wrestling Entertainment (1995–1997) Fekete began his career in 1995 in World Wrestling Federation as a regular on the ECW brand, where he worked with most of the ECW rosters stars. He wrestled first on the ECW show against Todd Champion (Norman Smiley). He then went to the WWF as The Trooper, and continued in the company for three years before being released. World Championship Wrestling (1997–1998) After his release from WWF, Fekete began wrestling in WCW. His first match in WCW was against Sid Vicious. He then formed a tag team called "The Decadents" with one-half of the team being female wrestler Julie Night. After the team dissolved, Fekete continued wrestling as a singles competitor. In WCW, he won a match against Sid Vicious by disqualification. His last WCW match was against the team of "Mean" Gene Okerlund and Lance Storm. He would later wrestle for the WCW International roster. Return to WWF/WWE (1997–1999) On September 4, 1997 Fekete returned to the WWF for the ECW reunion show in Madison Square Garden, New York. He defeated Tommy Dreamer and defeated Tatanka in a squash match. He was scheduled to appear on the September 26 episode of ECW (later WCW) Wrestling, which was the WWF's ECW return show. He made his WWF/ECW Raw debut at Unforgiven: In Your House. Fekete teamed up with Vince McMahon's friend and former rival Curt Hennig to defeat the team of Al Snow and Brian Adams in a tag team match. He also competed in the following matches: the September 30 Halloween Havoc against Bam Bam Bigelow; a victory over Bradshaw in a Hardcore match at Unforgiven: In Your House; a victory over Test in a Hardcore match on October 7 at Survivor Series; a victory over Big Bubba in a Hardcore match on October 14 at the Halloween Havoc; a victory over Kevin Norton
