In May, a federal judge ruled that the 6-foot-3-inch Trump University's lavish sales tactics, plagiarized materials, and failure to provide promised instruction violated the law. Trump's lawyers immediately appealed the ruling, and at a hearing yesterday in San Diego, a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard the case for a second time. According to the Associated Press, Trump lawyer Daniel Petrocelli provided the main argument for the Trump

University during the hearing. In a statement issued afterward, Trump lawyer Marc Kasowitz said that the appeals court "has no choice but to reverse." "We look forward to further proceedings to obtain justice for consumers who, like the American people, chose our product based on trust in Mr. Trump and his personally guaranteed results," Kasowitz said. Representatives from the state of California also filed a brief supporting the plaintiffs, who want to seek $40 million in compensation. As the Associated Press points out, it's not clear if they will get that money. The official appeal document lists Trump's name, but not the name of his company, which was dropped in 2014 when the appeals court decided to hear Trump's case. Here is the full statement released by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals on Trump University's decision to appeal the earlier ruling: WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court declined to step in and rescue the Donald Trump University case Wednesday, a result
