A sad situation. Not only do we have a lack of stability, we also have a lack of democracy,” President Joachim Gauck said to the US ambassador to Berlin, Richard Grenell, in an interview published on Wednesday. “So I feel very strongly about our neighboring countries. We are very concerned about the situation there,” the president said. This is how we are doing in Słupsk: we are a lot more relaxed and even taking a day off! The mayor of Słupsk jokes about how relaxed the people of Słupsk are since this morning, after some episodes of heavy fighting last night. “We have a lot of policemen, we have a lot of people with fire arms, but we are also having a day off to go out on the streets,” Mikel Sędziwok, the mayor of Słupsk, tells The Source. Sędziwok adds that the people here are interested to know what the motives were for the fighting. “We are interested, we want to know what happened. What kind of leaders and authorities we are dealing with,” he says. The mayor explained that the police are patrolling the streets and wanted to check the safety of the city and the residents’ feeling. Now they are relieved because “at least the mood is stable,” he says. The mayor of Słupsk notes 6d1f23a050
